1. Introduction
This document is prepared to articulate Policy for Protection Against Sexual Exploitation & Abuse (PSEA). The policy is applicable at the organizational, community and beneficiary levels. The systems and procedure for minimizing and managing issues as and when arises is articulated as a step-by-step process. This is a living document and would be improved as and when required. A formal review of the policy would be undertaken at the end of each year to know the number of cases, frequency of cases, nature of cases and need for improving the policy. In case of need for improvement, the policy would be improved and presented to board of directors for approval without any delay.

2. Objectives
The prime objective of the PSEA policy is to ensure beneficiary (especially child, women, person with disability) protection, gender equity, women’s access to governance and provide them opportunities to exercise their rights with freedom and protection. Women’s empowerment to become part of decision-making system by participating in investigation committees is an indirect objective of the policy.

So, CHIP as an organization always keep on flagging the probable protection issues particularly associated with persons with disabilities, women and children during execution of each of its programme activities. CHIP ensures staff to think and develop a mitigation plan for the reduction and coping of protection issues on head on basis.

3. Motivation
The policy is based on the recognition of the factual inequalities between persons and these inequalities continue to persist and grow in our society, making discrimination as one of the most widespread forms of exclusion. The following factors drive the PSEA policy:

   a. Equality is embedded in human rights.
   b. Equality through the empowerment of children, women and men without any differences of disability, ability or any other aspects is critical for good governance.
   c. Women’s and men’s dynamic contribution to society as individuals, workers and citizens is critical for sustainable development.
   d. Empowerment of disadvantaged groups (and women are by far the disadvantaged group in our society) is a key strategy for poverty alleviation and social change.
   e. The situation of women in Pakistan deserves greater attention; any Programme or strategy that fails to pay adequate attention to gender equality is likely to have less than desirable impact on human and institutional development of the country.
   f. Children and women are vulnerable to any kind of abuse hence it is extremely important to ensure their protection and joyful participation in development activities.
   g. Persons with disability are vulnerable to any kind of abuse and security threat therefore it is extremely important to ensure their protection and right to access and utilize basic services and opportunities for realizing their full potential and enjoy their lives like all others.
   h. To sensitize the staff, partners and beneficiaries towards protection of women, children, vulnerable individual/groups particularly in crises and during implementation human driven programmes.

4. Key Definitions
The policy on PSEA is guided by UN guidelines to protect women, men, children and persons with disability at work places and during implementation of the programme activities. The definition of key terms is explained as follow:

GENERAL GUIDELINES

1. The objective of completing a staff appraisal form is to assess employees’ performance over the period under review. This assessment is then intended to form the basis on which plans for their future development and progression in the company will be drawn. It is therefore important that this form should be completed with utmost honesty and care.

2. While assessing an employee take all the relevant factors into consideration, for example the type of job being handled, length of service, importance of work done, level of position held, etc. In certain cases a particular area may not be applicable, e.g. a clerk cannot be fairly rated on leadership ability. In such cases, please write ‘Not Applicable’ or N/A across the rating range. Avoid the tendency to rate the employee on the basis of personal relationship, or only his recent performance. Take the whole (period’s) year’s performance into account.

3. Complete Parts A, B and C of the Appraisal Form and show it to the employee concerned. A frank discussion should take place on all aspects of his/her performance. The employee should then sign in the space provided in part C for his views. Employee has the right to disagree with the assessment in which case he/she simply says so within the appraisal form and signs it.

4. Part D should be completed after the employee has signed in part. Be objective and give due reasons for any recommendations made in Part D.

5. The first segment of Part E will be completed by Division Head, along or in consultation with assessor, as appropriate. If a large percentage of subordinates under an assessor have differed with the assessor, the Division Head may have a word with the subordinates before completing this section. The second segment forms the final management decision – it will be completed by the CEO, alone or in consultation with relevant Division Head.

6. For each area of observation, there are five levels of rating provided, viz A, B, C, D and E. Please put ‘X’ in the appropriate box. Do not put an ‘X’ in more than one box for any one area. Refer to guidelines on merit rating before starting to complete this section of the Appraisal Form.

7. The ultimate responsibility for completion of this form rests with the Departmental Managers. However, for certain junior employees the responsibility of completing this form may be delegated to a foreman or a supervisor. In such cases the form must be signed both by the assessor and the Departmental Manager.

Merit Rating Guidelines

01. General Conduct, Staff and Public Relations: Here we assess the employee on his relationship with colleagues, and where applicable general public, willingness to assist others, personality traits, etc. It also covers how well the employee dresses and presents him/herself. Rating A stands for a very co-operative and pleasant person, B for quite helpful attitude, C for satisfactory attitude, D for neutral clash-avoiding attitude and E for indifferent or difficult disposition.

02. Initiative and Interest in Work: Here we assess the employee in two areas: in terms of initiative, we assess on original ideas offered, making suggestions for improvements, coming forward to accept new responsibilities, etc. In terms of interest in work, we assess the employee on the manner he handles his job. Is he willing and keen, or does he avoid extra work? Does he meet his dead lines, or has he to be reminded several times? Does he arrive at work in time, or is he usually late? Rating A stands for a very gifted worker, B for alert and progressive worker, C for some initiative shown, D for fair and E for no initiative/interest shown at all.

03. Integrity / honesty: Here we assess the employee on his personal integrity and honesty, e.g. does he make false claims for traveling, does he keep his expense report and other affairs in order, does he expect favors in return of his work, etc. Rating A stands for a very honest and upright worker, B for a worker with a high degree of honesty, C for an average degree of honest, D for a worker who may occasionally be tempted to be dishonest and E for outright dishonest worker.

04. Organizational ability/leadership: Here we assess how the employee organizes his work, is he methodical in his approach to tasks, does he have a sense of priority, does he follow the laid down procedure, etc. In case of supervisory staff, this also includes such areas as how well he directs and motivates his staff, how he delegates responsibility and authority, how he inspires confidence among his staff, how he handles complaints, grievances or difficult situations, etc. Rating A stands for excellent organizational ability and leadership, B for good, C for adequate, D for below average and E for non-existent organizational ability.

05. Loyalty to CHIP: Here we assess the employee on the degree of his loyalty and long term interest in the Company.
